Reading as a language skill.

"Reading is to the mind, what exercise is to the body" - Addison.

Reading is defined as the recognition of the important elements of meaning in their essential including accuracy and thoroughness of comprehension. Reading is an important aspect of teaching-learning a foreign language. Reading opens the gates of knowledge. The more a person reads, the more knowledgeable he is. And he gets help to tackle the problems of life in many ways. He has to read letters and newspapers, books and periodicals, and also read signs and other guidelines. Reading is a source of joy and perennial happiness as it makes use to interact with the writing of renowned writers and poets whose adornments of the language are parallel.

Reading for Global and Local Comprehension

Reading is not only a

Skill. We gain a lot of knowledge and seek pleasure if we are able to develop the reading skill properly. Reading with comprehension opens a gateway to the attainment of knowledge of diverse kinds. Thus, reading comprehension involves understanding the meaning of:

- i) The new content words introduced by the writer
- ii) New grammatical structures.
- iii) New concepts of special references.
- iv) Relationship to ideas.

The comprehension questions are mainly of two types:

- (i) Global.
- (ii) Local

Global comprehension questions are meant for testing the overall understanding of the paragraph or lines read by the learners. Whereas, the aim of the local comprehension type questions is to find out to what extent the learner has been able to understand the important points in the reading material.

The comprehension questions are:

- i) Factual questions
- ii) Inferential questions
- iii) Evaluation questions

Critical Reading

Critical reading is a form of language analysis that does not take the given text at face value, but involves a deeper examination of the claim put forth as well as the supporting points and possible counter arguments. The ability to reinterpret and reconstruct for improved clarity and readability is also a component of critical reading. The identification of possible ambiguities and flaws in the author's reasoning, in addition to the ability to address them comprehensively is essential to this process. Critical reading, much like academic writing requires the linkage of evidential points for corresponding arguments.

Critical reading is an important precursor to critical writing. The most characteristic features of critical reading are:

- i) Examine the evidence or arguments presented in the writing.
- ii) Check out the limitations of the study design or focus.
- iii) Examine the interpretations made.
- iv) Finally, decide extent you accept the author's arguments.

Ways of Reading Pre Reading & Post Reading

Pre reading is done before to prepare for the act of reading should have the same goals in mind. The Teacher should prepare the students to read the book and give some insight on the story. For younger students, making sure they have the vocabulary necessary to handle the text is crucial. Games to teach those words could be in a fun way to bring students in for older students, making sure they understand the significance of a work is important.

Post reading tasks are intended to verify and expand the knowledge acquired in the reading. This type of reading leads the learners and analyze the issues present in the reading. Post-activities are tasks in which learners, after interacting with the reading, reflect, argue and gives their view point.

Developing Writing Skills

Importance of Developing Writing Skills:

Writing refers to putting down the graphic symbols of language for communication of ideas, feelings and needs. In some languages, it is started as drawing of pictures and its best illustration.

Chinese and other associated languages which literally make the figures of the action or thing. In the other languages, however alphabets were devised and the combination came to mean something specific depending on the cultural and social milieu of users. The chief objective of teaching English to the students is to enable them expressive powers in English. Thompson and Wyatt have said,

"The power or expressive in a language is a matter of skill rather than of knowledge".

Stages of Writing

Classroom Process of Writing:

The classroom approach treats a creative act which requires time to be done well. In process writing away from being someone who sets students a writing topic and receives the finished product for correction without any intervention in the writing process itself. Research also shows that feedback is more useful between drafts, not when it is done at the end of the task after the students hand in their composition to be marked. The writing process involves teaching students to write in a variety of contexts, encouraging creativity and incorporating writing conventions. This process can be used in all areas of the curriculum and provides an excellent way to connect instruction with state writing standards.

The following are the ways to implement each step of the writing process:

- (i) Pre-writing
- (ii) Rough draft
- (iii) Peer editing
- (iv) Revising

- (vi) Final draft
- (vii) Publishing

Writing and Reflecting on Texts

Understanding the Concept of Reflective Writing:

Reflecting writing is an analytical practice in which the writer describes a real or imaginary scene, event, interaction, passing thought, memory, form, adding a personal reflection on the meaning of the item or incident, thought, feeling emotion or situation in his or her life. Many reflective writers keep in mind such questions like "What did I notice?", "How has this changed me?", or "What might I have done differently?"

Thus the focus is on writing that is not merely descriptive. The writer doesn't just push a play button; rather, he or she revisits the scene to notice the details.

and emotions, reflects on meanings, examines what went well or revealed a need for additional learning, and relate what transpired to the rest of life.

Benefits of Reflective Practice:

- i) Improving your teaching practice.
- ii) Learning from reflective practice
- iii) Enhancing problem solving skills
- iv) Becoming a critical thinker.
- v) Making decisions
- vi) Improving your own organizational skills
- vii) Managing personal change.
- viii) Acknowledging personal values
- ix) Taking your own advice.
- x) Recognizing emancipator benefits.

Text:

Text is an any piece of writing; it could be a letter, a novel, a poem, a recipe, a note, instruction, an article in a newspaper or magazines, writing on a webpage etc, all those examples can be called as texts. There are different types of text. They are,

i) Descriptive texts:

A descriptive text is a text that reports to picture what is being described. A novel is a story.

imagine the characters and see them in your mind. A travel book will tell you the country being described.

ii) Information texts

An informative text is a text that wants to advise or tell you about something. For example, a newspaper article may give you information about a health issue, such as giving up smoking. A website may give you information about a movie, a band or something that you are interested in. A handout from school may advise you about what your child will be doing during the text term.

iii) Instructive texts:

An instructive text is a text that constructs or tells you how to do something. For example, a recipe instructs you how to cook something or a leaflet that comes with a piece of furniture tells you how to put it together or take care of it.

iv) Persuasive texts:

A persuasive text is a text that is constructed to make you do something. For example, an advertisement may want to buy something. You may write a letter to persuade a friend to go on a holiday with you.

Conclusion :

"Infact, the education of a child's is imperfect, unless he is equipped with the ability to read, to write, to speak and to understand properly the contents".

Reading & writing paves the way to self-education, when one is fully familiar with a language there can be addition to his storehouse of knowledge with the help of self-study. Reading arouses curiosity in individual to read more and more. As a result, the individual develops an interest in reading newspaper, journals, magazines etc with which one can get up to date knowledge. It is meant for the intellectual development of the child. The intellectual advancement of a child is strictly limited, if he is unable to understand the language.

Activity - 1

Engage the student - teachers in reading interactively individually and in small groups

Introduction:

Education is the process of facilitating learning or the acquisition of knowledge, skills, values, beliefs and habits. Educational methods include story telling, discussion, teaching, training and directed research. Education frequently takes place under the guidance of educators, but learners may also educate themselves.

Reading:

Reading activity is a complex cognitive process of decoding symbols in order to construct or derive meaning. It is a means of language acquisition of communication and of sharing information and ideas. Reading is an activity with a purpose. A person may read in order to gain information or verify existing knowledge or in order to critique a writer's ideas or writing style. A person may also read for enjoyment, or to enhance knowledge of the language being read. The purpose

Significance of reading.

- i) The most important reason for reading is that we gain knowledge.
- ii) It is a proven fact that those who have good reading habit show signs of higher intelligence.
- iii) Reading fiction develops empathy and helps build better relations with others.
- iv) Good reading also inspires you to write.
- v) Reading is also a kind of motivation that works wonders in when it comes to de-stressing.

Reflection :

Reading reflecting can be used in courses at any level, and in any discipline. Reflects are designed to encourage students to complete readings before coming to class, to reflect more deeply on the content of the reading. The reflections are not graded, but credit is earned to timely submissions and evidence of careful reading and deep reflection.

"The process of internally examining and exploring an issue of concern, triggered by an experience, which creates and clarifies meaning in terms of self and which result in a changed conceptual perspective."

Significance of Reflection:

- (i) Reflection help learners take charge of their own learning
- (ii) Build stronger connections between learning experiences
- (iii) Generate useful feedback for better course design
- (iv) Greater reflection leads to greater success.
- (v) Student reflections can spark more social interactions.

Individual Reading:

Independent reading is a term used in educational settings, where students are involved in choosing and reading material for their independent consumption and enjoyment. Students that read independently have an emphasized creative choice in what they want to read and choose to learn. Usually independent reading takes place along side the on going curriculum in the classroom or home school. Independent reading can tied to assessment and evaluation as activity in itself.

Significance of individual reading

Independent Reading is the reading students choose to do on their own. It reflects the reader's personal choice of the material to be read as well as the time and place read. The amount of free reading done outside of school has consistently been found to relate to growth of vocabulary, reading comprehension, verbal fluency and general information. Students who read independently become better readers. Score higher on achievement tests in all subject areas, and have greater content knowledge than those who do not. So all subject need to encouraged to read.

Group Reading

Guided reading is small-group reading instruction designed to provide differentiated teaching that supports students in developing reading proficiency. The small group model allows students to be taught in a way that is intended to be more focused on their specific needs, accelerating their progress

Significance of group reading:

Book name : Oliver Twist

Author : Charles Dickens

Published by : Macmillan Publishers India Limited

Genre : Novel

New edition : 2008

Original Title : "Oliver Twist" or "The Parish Boy's Progress"

Reading and reflection on text in "Oliver Twist".

According to my views on 'Oliver Twist' the novel deals with poverty, criminality, child abuse, identity, and cruelty. Oliver Twist was a young orphan. His life in the workhouse was lonely and sad. Through this novel Oliver Twist, he told about the injustice and cruelty faced by poor people; and how orphan children were brought up in the appalling conditions to the workhouse, where they were starved and neglected. The scene in which the young Oliver, on behalf of his ill-treated companions asked for more food as one of the best and most moving incidents in literature. In taken his readers into the sady underworld of Victorian London, where innocent children were taught by evil men to steal for there living. Fagin and Sikes tried to change Oliver but he continued to be an innocent good boy. As Oliver was a poor boy there was no one to take care of him. Luckily, Oliver also found people who took good care of him and helped him.

Being a social reformer, Charles Dickens shed light on the prevalent social issues. The issues include class differences, exploitation of the poor and child labor. The rich remained rich and snobbish, while the poor suffered. The society would determine the fate of the people. There were no scopes for the poor to rise and prosper. The poor people remained miserable, yet the rich would keep thriving.

The writer also brought focus to a society that was patriarchal, where women were oppressed and in a lot of cases, treated like an object. In the book the character of the young man, Oliver represents the struggles of the neglected children who don't have a family. They are orphaned and and poor in a flawed society. Through this novel students understand the suffering faced by poor Oliver.

Reading and Reflection on text in classroom activity:

First day Jamima started to read the book. Nishi's reading was good and she read boldly and loudly. Next Taberlin reads excellently and clearly. Abisha was not bad but she had fear in her reading. Shabel's reading was very good and she read many pages from the book.

Next Abarna read loudly and she read like a poem. Banisha made some mistakes and she read softly. Sharmi read with a low sound and she made many mistakes. Janisha read very slowly and she read in low voice. Vidhya read only two lines and it was so bad. Infanta's reading skill was very nice.

Aimen read well but she made some mistakes. Durga's reading was very poor and she had to improve her reading skill. Irfana's reading was very good and I liked her reading.

Conclusion

In this book Oliver met lots of new people, some of them were kind and loving but on the other hand some are cruel and nasty. It enables person to know about the characters of people. It also gave a clear information about the workhouse how poor children suffer. This novel traced all the problems that happens in the life of Oliver. All the students understood the suffering faced by the poor Oliver.

Book Review "The Taj Mahal is a Temple Palace"

P.N. Oak has given such evidences in this book which proved that the building Taj Mahal existed years before the death of Mumtaz Mahal.

The serene beauty, the Taj Mahal have made it known all over the world. But what was not so well known the true story of its origin, that its magnificence stems from its having originated as a palace.

It was pity that the Taj Mahal was believed to have originated as a sombre tomb in the 17th century when it was perhaps built in the 17th century to serve as a palace.

The suddenness with which his gay and magnificent palace got converted into a tomb must have constituted a very unfortunate occurrence of Jaisingh's life.

The changeover had proved a shroud deluding everybody from lay visitors to researchers and history scholars that the Taj was built as a sepulchre.

Popular nostalgia for legendary love has helped fan the flame of Shahjahan's mythical attachment to Mumtaz into a raging fire, enveloping the Taj in the dazzle of leaping flames and blinding smoke of imaginary, discouraging and cool, dispassionate research.

Activity - 3

Engage the student-teachers in reading the autobiographical narratives, field notes, ethnographies (scientific description of different races cultures) etc and develop different types of reading skills and strategies.

Introduction:

To reflect on reading is to take the ideas and sense impressions, the mood and expressions that the author has conveyed to by language, and compare them to other mental constructs such as your own experiences, beliefs, values, or other texts you have read, or other ideas or sense impressions within the text itself.

Autobiography:

An autobiography is a self-written account of the life of oneself. Autobiographical works can take many forms, from the intimate writings made during life that were not necessarily intended for publication. Autobiography is one type of biography, which tells a life story of its author, meaning it is a written record of the author's life.

are written in the form of a fictional tale; as novels or stories that closely mirror events from the authors real life.

Field notes:

Field notes refer to qualitative notes recorded by scientists or researchers in the course of field research, during or after their observation of a specific phenomenon they are studying. The notes are intended to be read as evidence that gives meaning and aids in the understanding of the phenomenon.

Ethnography:

Ethnography is the systematic study of people and cultures. It is designed to explore cultural phenomena where the researcher observes society from the point of view of the subject of the study. An ethnography is a means to represent graphically and in writing the culture a group. The word can thus be said to have a double meaning, which partly depends on whether it is used as a count noun or uncountable.

Book Review : Animal Behaviour

'Animal Behaviour' is an ethnography written by V.K. Agrawal. Animal Behaviour deals with various type of behaviours of animals and also that of human beings. The matter is represented in simple and lucid style. Behaviour is the tool with which an animal uses its environment. Through behaviour the animal manoeuvres itself in an organised and directed way and manipulates objects in the environment to suite its requirement. In order to behave, the animal must act as an individual and co-ordinate to parental and religious.

Principal

Animal behaviour can be divided into that which is shown by all members of a species and that which varies from one individual to another

- 1) Eating or ingestive behaviour
- 2) Shelter - seeking behaviour
- 3 Agonistic behaviour
4. Reproductive or sexual behaviour
5. Care - giving or epimaletic behaviour
6. Care - soliciting or el - epimaletic behaviour
- 7 Investigative behaviour.

Insight learning is the highest form of learning the animals solve their problems too rapidly without a normal trial - error approach. Reasoning is the ability to solve complex problems by behaving according to general principles rather than simply responding to the situation with simple trial and error behaviour or modification of stimulus - response behaviour.

They join in and kill the man in front of the narrator confesses that this is the story of his great-great-great-grandfather, whose death seemed to put a curse on the family. One son experienced nightmares so awful he died by suicide. The other drowned his sorrows in alcohol, and one day while he was in a pub, he got into a fight with a gray-haired man. During the beating, six more gray-haired men appeared and beat the son to death.

The narrator claims that the new generation has been visited by the ghost of his grandfather, and that someone always dies. The story ends with the narrator's reflection on the curse.

"See myself staggering through deep snow lugging blocks of wood yesterday an old man
almost falling from bodily weakness".

He depicts himself claiming that he is a old and weak man. The speaker seems to be looking at himself from different angles. He sees white hair-wrinkled face and hands. The old man seems to be ugly and useless. The old man loves his land. His love for the land is ridiculous to hear because the land is too harsh and unforgiving.

"its really not very surprising that love spoken by my voice should be when I am listening ridiculous".

He looks like a foolish man for loving such a hostile land. The old man realizes the truth behind his love for the land that it is not the physical strength help survive instead it is the fire (mind) which

" — the loss of love that comes to mean more than the love itself and how explain that ?

The feeling of loss that he expresses through the figure of pioneer axe-man is for the close contact with his land - harsh, unforgiving. One that he loves because the struggle taught him survival and a sense of belonging because he survived.

Conclusion:

The poet realizes that the past cannot be brought back and therefore wants to celebrate the loss of a way of life through his poetry. The mood of the poem is sad. The poem takes place during winter and there is snow on the ground.

Social Issues : Coal Mining

Mining is a short-term activity with long-term effects. There can be no doubt that when it takes place in forest zones, it is a factor of degradation. Coal Mining and combustion are associated with social injustices in local communities. These include environmental harms and health impacts on both minor and major scales.

Mining activities are carried out in various stages, each of them involving specific environmental impacts. Broadly speaking, these stages are: deposit prospecting and exploration, mine development and preparation, mine exploitation and treatment of the minerals obtained at the respective installations with the aim of marketable products.

Mining activities consume enormous quantities of wood for their construction. In the case of underground mines and as a source of energy for mines with charcoal is argued that mining is vital for industrialization because it provides raw material and source of energy. All this is added to the hazardous and unhealthy working conditions of this type of activity. Mining contributes to the economics of many developing countries; however the wealth may not reach local communities.

Conclusion:

There are significant environmental impacts associated with coal mining and use. It could require the removal of massive amounts of top soil, leading to erosion, loss of habitat and pollution. Coal mining causes acid mine drainage, which causes heavy metals to dissolve and seep into ground and surface water.

Read any three books related to education and make a critical presentation.

Introduction :

Reading is a complex cognitive process of decoding symbols to derive meaning. It is a form of language processing success in this process is measured as reading comprehension. In this activity I have to select three books are education and the good life. Operation black board and essentials of teaching and learning. I have to present the critical presentations of these topics. This is very useful to improve the reading and writing skill.

Reading Skill :

Reading Comprehension is the ability to process text, understand its meaning and to integrate with that the reader already knows.

Fundamental skills required in essential reading comprehension are knowing meaning of words.

ability to understand meaning of a word from discourse context, ability to follow organization of passage and to identify anacodons.

To improve reading skill :

To improve your reading skills you "need to have clear reading goals choose the right reading style use note taking techniques".

Critical presentation skill .

Critical presentation skill means awareness of alternative stand points and the ability to defend own stance through debate and argument. Assessment through debate and argument. Assessment of extent to which the evidence supports the conclusion drawn and to what extent debate is informed by people own prejudices and their own social, cultural, historical location. Critical thinking means the ability to surface underlying assumption or arguments. Ability to abstract and stand back from a situation and the ability to take known knowledge and skills apply situations.

Critical Presentation :

Distance Education is being widely used for different parts of the world to widen educational access at all levels. The communication with the learner is established through a range of media from printed self-instructional learning materials, audio-video cassette, radio broadcast, TV lessons or teleconferencing by choosing and combining the strengths of different media. In many countries, distance education is seen as a way of making educational resources go further.

education to many without incurring the extra cost of building new schools or colleges.

Developments in computer opening are also opening fresh opportunities for distance education. The touch screen facility, data transfer through modems, nation-wide, networking, digital communication through satellite and telephone lines, video disc with random access are important developments. Although early distance learning developments. Although early distance learning attempts were limited by technology, relying mainly on print, radio and one to two-way television, the eruption of the internet and collaborative software packages promise a more interactive, real-time distance learning process.

The idea of virtual university concepts include distance learning and virtual classes. This ideal educational development of virtual university is created by the support of infra information systems.

Nations must recognize that their human resources are their most valuable resources. Most developing countries are unable to produce engineers and technicians in large scale due to many reasons.

The conventional methods of teaching and educating engineers and technicians cannot cope with the scale and magnitude of these needs. A number of new initiatives have been taken recently with the main objective of making engineering education not only cost effective but also accessible to a large number of people. These new initiatives are based on satellite delivering of courses from one location to another locations simultaneously.

The most important problem in the emerging India society is not the problem of religion as the religious preachers believe. It is not the problem of industrialisation as the rulers believe. It is not the problem of politics as the politicians believe. It is not the problem of corruption as many of us believe. It is rather the problem of education by which man learn to live and act like normal human beings. The problem of education can be solved, if we can impart the right education.

to be present as well as to the following generation. The prevailing system of education, which we have inherited while achieving our freedom, has hardly any relevance to the needs and interests of the people. With the passage of time, the educational system is gradually drifting away from the realities of life.

Hence it ceases to be called the right education. All the people of our country realized these deficiencies of the system. A society like ours, which is passing through an extremely crucial but equally important phase of economic prosperity, can hardly allow this defective system of education to continue for long. Realizing this situation, the Indian Education Commission (1964-66) recommended the Introduction of the new pattern of education with a view to link education with productivity which is the need of the hour, and to improve the quality of education. Fortunately, our country has designed and accepted over the outdated system and is the implementation of the new pattern of education. This will involve a transformation of the system to relate it more closely to the life of the people, a continuous effort to expand educational opportunity, a sustained and intensive endeavour to raise the quality of education at all stages an emphasis on the development of science and technology and cultivation of moral and social values.

Critical Presentation

According to Russell, education is a process of self-development. But self development is possible only in and through society. Every individual has a social self. Russell pleaded for education for good and creative citizenship. In this influential and controversial work, Russell calls for an education that would liberate the child from unthinking obedience to parental and religious authority. He argues that if the basis of all education is knowledge wielded by love then society can be transformed.

Russell has emphasised enlargement of the mind and heart as one of the aims of education. According to Russell, one of the glaring defects of the existing system of education is to give too much emphasis on the acquisition of certain skills.

Another important aim of education, according to Russell, is to indicate a spirit of international peace and amity through education without this human civilisation cannot be saved, Russell opined. He was against narrow, perverted and virulent nationalism.

thinking over the teaching and teaching strategy. The impact of teachers and the quality of teaching were less important to students learning and achievement than other factors. Teachers have the most direct, sustained contact with students and considerable control over what is taught and the climate for learning, improving teachers knowledge, skills and dispositions through professional development is the critical step in improving student achievement. There is an importance to examine the well prepared teachers and high quality teaching matter. In my point of view, this book is very much important for the teachers to understand the specific character.

Book Details

Book Name : The role of the teacher

Author : Eric Haysle

First Published : 1969

Media : Print

Publisher : Routledge & Kegan Paul

Pages : 103

Edition : reprint

Critical Presentation :

A teacher, also called a school teacher or formally an educator, is a person who helps students to acquire knowledge, competence or virtue, via the practice of teaching.

Informally the role of teacher may be taken on by anyone. In some countries teaching young people of school age may be carried out in an informal setting, such as within the family rather than in the formal setting such as a school or college. Some of a professions may involve a significant amount of teaching.

Principal
Muslim College of Education
Thiruvithamcode

In most countries, formal teaching of students is usually carried out by paid professional teachers. The articles focus on those who are employed, as their main role to teach others in a formal education context, such as at a school or other place of initial formal education or training.

A Teacher role may vary among cultures. Teachers may provide instruction in literacy and numeracy, craftsmanship or vocational training, the Arts, religion, Civics, Community roles or life skills. Formal teaching tasks include preparing lessons according to agreed curricula, giving lessons and assessing pupils progress.

A teachers professional duties may extend beyond formal teaching. They also have the legal duty to protect students from harm, such as that which may result from bullying, sexual harassment, racism or abuse. In some education systems, teachers may be responsible for students discipline.
